TIME FOR ACTION : US PERSPECTIVES ON CLIMATE AND GENDER

Tuesday, March 22 from 4 - 5:30 PM EST

Jacqueline Patterson is the founder and executive director of the Chisholm Legacy Project: A Resource Hub for Black Frontline Climate Justice Leadership. Jacqui served as the Senior Director of the NAACP Environmental and Climate Justice Program, co-founded Women of Color United, and has worked on women's health issues for IMA World Health. Jacqui has Master's degrees in social work and public health.

Katherine Quaid is Nez Perce, Cayuse, and Paiute, a citizen of the Confederated Tribes of Umatilla, who was born and raised in rural central Oregon. Her dedication to climate justice is tied to the lands of her ancestors and the many communities nationally and around the world that are fighting for a healthy future. She is passionate about sharing her voice for justice and collaborating with frontline women across Turtle Island (USA) and globally in resistance movements and climate solutions as the Communications and Outreach Coordinator for the Women's Earth and Climate Action Network (WECAN).

Sherri Mitchell Weh'na Ha'mu Kwasset is an Indigenous rights activist involved in environmental justice issues for 25 years. She is the founding director of the Land Peace Foundation dedicated to the global protection of Indigenous land and water rights. Sherri has been deeply committed to renewing the traditional ceremonial practices of Indigenous communities and also participated in the design of the US Action for Climate Empowerment (ACE) National Strategic Planning Framework.
